The American Institute of Architects

Principles of Professional Practice

1857 1942

The American Institute of Architects, seeking to maintain a high standard of practice and conduct on the part of its members as a safeguard of the important financial, technical and esthetic interests entrusted to them, offers the following advice relative to professional practice:

The profession of architecture calls for men of the highest integrity, business capacity and artistic ability. The Architect is entrusted with financial undertakings in which his honesty of purpose must be above suspicion; he acts as professional adviser to his client and his advice must be absolutely disinterested; he is charged with the exercise of judicial functions as between client and contractors and must act with entire impartiality; he has moral responsibilities to his professional associates and subordinates; finally he is engaged in a profession which carries with it grave responsibility to the public. These duties and responsibilities cannot be properly discharged unless his motives, conduct, and ability are such as to command respect and confidence.

Upon the foregoing basic principles the experience of The Institute leads it to advise in respect to specific instances as follows:

1. The relation of an Architect to his client is one depending upon good faith. An Architect will explain the conditional character of estimates made before final drawings and specifications are complete and will not by careless statements mislead a client as to the probable cost of a building. If the Architect guarantees an estimate he becomes legally responsible and he should not make any guarantee which affects the quality of his advice.

2. The contractor depends upon the Architect to guard his interests as well as those of the client. An Architect will condemn workmanship and materials which are not in conformity with the contract documents but it is also his duty to give every reasonable aid toward a complete understanding of these documents so that mistakes may be avoided. He will not call upon a contractor to make good oversights and errors in the contract documents.

3. An exchange of information between Architects and those who supply and handle building materials is encouraged and commended but the use of the free engineering service which is offered by manufacturers and jobbers of building materials, appliances and equipment is accompanied by an obligation which may become detrimental to the best interest of the owner.

4. The American Institute of Architects has set forth a schedule or guide by which the proper professional charges may be determined. The Architect's charges for his professional service shall be made to the client only, and he will not receive commissions, fees, gifts, favors or any substantial service from a contractor, or from any interested person other than the client. He will not knowingly compete with a fellow Architect on a basis of professional charges.

5. An Architect in his investments and in his business relations outside of his profession must be free from financial or personal interests which tend to weaken or discredit his standing as an unprejudiced and honest adviser, free to act in his client's best interests.

6. An Architect will not advertise for the purpose of self-laudatory publicity, but publicity of the standards, aims and progress of the profession is to be commended. He will not take part or give any assistance in obtaining advertisements or other support towards meeting the expense of any publication illustrating his work; nor will he permit others to solicit such advertisements or other support; he will not sanction the publication of a brochure or catalogue illustrating his work, when the cost of such publication is paid for by advertisements, regardless of whether he takes part or gives any assistance in obtaining such advertisements. Judgment in matters covered by this article is the responsibility of the individual Architect. Action contrary to these principles is disapproved as not in accordance with the canons of good taste and good repute, but is not subject to discipline.

7. An Architect may introduce to a possible client the service which he is able to perform but will not, except under unusual circumstances, offer to continue this service without compensation until it has been approved; and in no case will he offer this service in competition with others except as provided in Article 9.

8. An Architect will not falsely or maliciously injure, directly or indirectly, the professional reputation, prospects or business of a fellow Architect. He will not attempt to supplant another Architect after definite steps have been taken by a client toward his employment; nor will he undertake a commission for which another has been previously employed until he has determined that the original employment has been definitely terminated.

9. The American Institute of Architects has issued a Circular of Information in regard to Competitions. An Architect will take no part in a competition which does not include the provisions which experience has found to be necessary if the best interests of the owner and of the Architect are to be safeguarded.

No set of rules can be framed which will particularize all the duties of the Architect in his various relations with his clients, with contractors, with his professional brethren and with the public. The principles that have been outlined should, however, together with such circulars and codes as The Institute may from time to time promulgate, govern the conduct of members of the profession and should serve as a guide in circumstances other than those enumerated. Since adherence to these principles is the obligation of every member of The American Institute of Architects, any deviation therefrom, unless specifically excepted, is subject to discipline in proportion to its seriousness. The Judiciary Committee and finally The Board of Directors of The American Institute of Architects shall have sole power of interpreting these Principles of Professional Practice and their decisions shall be final, subject to the provisions of the by-laws.

The American Institute of Architects

Professional Practice of Architects

Details of Service to be Rendered

1857 1942

Schedule of Proper Charges for Service

1. The Architect's professional services consist of the necessary conferences, the preparation of preliminary studies, working drawings, specifications, large scale and full size detail drawings; the structural and mechanical design for the contract drawings and specifications; the drafting of forms of proposals; the taking of bids and the preparing of contracts; the checking of shop drawings; the inspection of models; the issuance of certificates of payment; the keeping of accounts; the general administration of the business and supervision of the work.

Proper charges for service are as follows:

(a) Structures requiring special and prolonged study in their design and detail; or where the production cost to the Architect is high in proportion to the project cost, such as monumental and residential work, decorative and cabinet work, landscape features and alterations and additions to existing buildings. On all such work a proper fee should be higher than the minimum fee named in paragraph (b);

(b) Structures of conventional character requiring usual skill and care which make up the common run of architectural practice. On such work a proper minimum commission for complete service, based on the total cost of the work, is six per cent (6%);

(c) For certain types of work essentially repetitive in character and of such magnitude as to warrant it, a different basis of charges than that stated above is proper, such basis to depend on the particular circumstances under which the work is conducted.

2. The Architect is entitled to compensation for articles purchased under his direction, even though not designed by him.

3. For special services, where the Architect is not otherwise retained, consultation fees for professional advice are to be charged in proportion to the importance of the question involved and services rendered.

4. The Architect, in addition to his fee, is entitled to reimbursement for costs of transportation and living incurred by him and his assistants while traveling in discharge of duties connected with the work, for the cost of telegrams and long distance telephone calls made in the interest of the Owner or to expedite the work, for the cost of blue printing in excess of the customary or reasonable amount, and for the costs to the Architect of the services of consultants where such services are required.

5. The rate of percentage arising from Article 1, i. e., the basic rate, applies when all of the work is let under one contract or the customary major contracts. Should the Owner determine to have other portions of the work executed under separate contracts, thereby increasing the Architect's burden of service, expense, and responsibility, the Architect shall charge a rate in connection with such portions of the work greater than the basic rate.

6. If, after a definite scheme has been approved, the Owner makes a decision which, for its proper execution, involves extra services and expense for changes in or additions to the drawings, specifications or other documents; or if a contract be let by cost of labor and materials plus a percentage or fixed sum; or if the Architect be put to labor or expense by delays caused by the Owner or a contractor, or by the delinquency or insolvency of either, or as a result of damage by fire or other casualty, the Architect is to be equitably paid by the Owner for such extra service and expense.

7. Payments to the Architect on his fee are to be made as follows:

Upon completion of the preliminary studies, a sum equal to twenty per cent (20%) of the basic rate computed upon a reasonable estimated cost.

Upon completion of specifications and general working drawings (exclusive of details) a sum sufficient to increase payments on the fee to seventy-five per cent (75%) of the rate or rates of commission agreed upon, computed upon a reasonable cost estimated on such completed specifications and drawings, or if bids have been received, then computed upon the lowest bona fide bid or bids.

During the preparation of the preliminary studies and of the specifications and general working drawings, it is proper that payments on account be made at monthly or other intervals, in proportion to the progress of the Architect's service.

From time to time during the execution of the work and in proportion to the amount of service rendered by the Architect, payments are made until the aggregate of all payments made on account of the fee under this Article reaches a sum equal to the rate or rates of commission agreed upon computed upon the final cost of the work.

Payments to the Architect, other than those on his fee, fall due from time to time as such extra work is done or as costs are incurred.

No deduction is made from the Architect's fee on account of cost reduction due to the use of old materials, penalty, liquidated damages or other sums withheld from payments to contractors.

The words "the cost of the work" as used in Articles 1 and 7 hereof, are ordinarily to be interpreted as meaning the total cost to the Owner for the execution of the work not including Architect's and Consultants' fees or the salary of the clerk-of-the-works.

8. Should the execution of any work designed or specified by the Architect or any part of such work be abandoned or suspended, the Architect is to be paid in accordance with or in proportion to the terms of Article 7 of this schedule for the service rendered, up to the time of such abandonment or suspension.

9. The Owner shall be required to furnish at his own expense for the information of the Architect a complete and accurate survey of the building site, giving the grades and lines of streets, pavements and adjoining properties; the rights, restrictions, easements, boundaries, and contours of the building site; full information as to sewer, water, gas and electrical services; test borings or pits and chemical, mechanical or other tests, when required.

10. The Architect endeavors to guard the Owner against defects and deficiencies in the work of contractors, but does not guarantee the performance of their contracts. The supervision of an Architect is such as he deems necessary to ascertain whether the work is being executed in conformity with his working drawings or specifications or directions, and is to be distinguished from the continuous personal superintendence to be obtained by the employment of a clerk-of-the-works.

When authorized by the Owner, a clerk-of-the-works, acceptable to both Owner and Architect, will be employed by the Architect at a salary satisfactory to the Owner and at the Owner's expense.

11. When requested to do so, the Architect will furnish preliminary estimates on the cost of the work, but he does not guarantee the accuracy of such estimates.

12. Drawings or specifications, as instruments of service, are the property of the Architect, whether the work for which they are made be executed or not.
